Fetishes are small objects that depict animals or icons that are important in several North American indigenous cultures. They are carved in stone, precious gems, coral, shells and other materials. North American Indians believe that fetishes have magical powers and give people protection at different moments in life. Nowadays, these hand-carved figures are considered to be pieces of artwork. Among the different fetishes made by various indigenous peoples, the ones created by the Zuni people are the most admired.

The Zuni tribe lives in New Mexico, in the United States, where they keep a set of traditional customs — and carving fetishes is one of them. They make fetishes of animals whose characteristics are important to them.

Mountain lion — Seen as having leadership skills and as being resourceful and powerful.

Bear — Associated with strength, introspection and self-knowledge. Also seen as the great protector and healer.

Coyote — Respected for its survival skills and related to humor and the ability to laugh at oneself.

Badger — Although seen as aggressive, perseverance is the main characteristic of this animal according to the Zuni people.

Eagle — Known for its creativity, intuition and great vision. Also seen as a healer.

Mole — Considered protector of crops and the underground. The Zuni people see it as a symbol of introspection and awareness.

Wolf — Since this animal always lives in packs, it’s seen as an example of loyalty and wisdom and an advocate of family values.

Stop and Think! Are there any animals associated with personality traits in your culture?
Look at the text below and mark (✓) the text type.

☐ a quiz

☐ an interview

How Responsible Are You?

1. You’ve been playing video games for hours, but you need to study for a test. What do you do?
   a) You keep playing the game. You don’t want to study after all.
   b) You keep playing the game, but you worry about the test.
   c) You stop playing right away and get to your notes.

2. Your parents have an important appointment in the evening. If they go, they will get back home in the middle of the night. What do you do?
   a) You show empathy so they don’t worry about you. You will then secretly throw a party while they are out.
   b) You tell them you need someone to make dinner for you. After all, you can’t even make a sandwich.
   c) You say they can go and promise you will call them once or twice to say how things are going.

3. Some friends decide to skip classes to hang out at a park and invite you to join them. What do you do?
   a) You join them. After all, having fun is the best thing in life!
   b) You go with them, but you’re so afraid of getting caught that you don’t have any fun.
   c) You decide not to go and feel OK about it. You can hang out on the weekend.

4. You want to buy a new bike, but your parents say they can’t afford it. What do you do?
   a) You cry and bother your parents until they change their minds.
   b) You get really sad and complain about your parents to a friend.
   c) You get a part-time job to save money for the bike.

5. Your parents give you a prepaid cell phone. How do you use it?
   a) You always ask your parents to add credit to it before the end of the month.
   b) Sometimes you run out of credit, but most of the time you can control its use.
   c) You never run out of credit. You’re able to manage the account well.
Circle T (True) or F (False).

Work in small groups to create and carry out a quiz.

Step 1: Choose a positive personality trait to complete the title of your quiz.

How ___________________ are you?

Considerate
Honest
Reasonable Friendly Patient

Step 2: Write five questions and possible answers, according to the personality trait in Step 1. Use your personal experience to come up with realistic situations.

Step 3: Write possible answers to each question. Plan them in such a way that they clearly represent the personality trait. Look at the quiz on page 22 and use the diagram below to help you plan the answers.

irresponsible  kind of responsible  responsible

Step 4: When the questions and answers are ready, write the results. Look at the example of the quiz on page 22.

Now exchange your quiz with another group. Have them answer your questions while you work on their quiz. Good luck!
